PRESS RELEASE

RE: FALSE, MISLEADING AND MALICIOUS PUBLICATIONS SEEKING TO IMPROPERLY LINK ADAMUS RESOURCES LIMITED AND MADAM ANGELA LIST TO ALLEGED REGULATORY BREACHES IN MALI

We act as Solicitors for Adamus Resources Limited and Madam Angela List.

Our Clients' attention has been drawn to a series of coordinated newspaper publications and sensational front-page stories deliberately framed around the claim that a "sister company" of Adamus Resources Limited was implicated in alleged regulatory breaches arising from a correspondence issued by the Ministry of Mines of the Republic of Mali.

The publications are misleading, reckless, and plainly calculated to inflict reputational damage on our Clients through distortion.

A careful and objective reading of the letter in circulation reveals a fact that the alleged breaches referenced in the correspondence were specifically attributed to MIKO-SA.

Adamus Resources Limited is nowhere mentioned in the correspondence but yet in what can only be described as a calculated exercise in sensationalism and reputational manipulation, certain newspapers deliberately framed the story around the expression "Adamus sister company" in an attempt to connect our Clients and to subtly invite the public to draw false conclusions concerning the operations and reputation of Madam Angela List and her businesses.

While certain entities referenced in the publications may exist within a broader corporate structure, the affiliated companies in law remain separate and distinct legal entities. Allegations against one entity cannot dishonestly be converted into accusations against another merely because of perceived corporate relationships.

More importantly, the said correspondence merely contains allegations. For the record, MIKO-SA is a responsible corporate entity and firmly denies the allegations referenced in the said correspondence.

The synchronized manner in which these stories appeared across several major newspapers and the strategic placement of the publications on front pages, expose a coordinated agenda by unseen actors seeking to injure the reputation of our Clients for ulterior motives.

Indeed, it is most revealing that while the correspondence emanates from Mali, it is media houses in Ghana and not Mali that appear to have embarked on an aggressive campaign of sensationalizing the information and deliberately amplifying misleading narratives around Adamus Resources Limited and Madam Angela List.

The attempt to exploit ongoing public discourse relating to Adamus Resources in Ghana and to manufacture a false narrative that Angela List and companies associated with her operate outside lawful and regulatory standards is most unfortunate.

Our Clients have over the years built reputable businesses through lawful enterprise and will not permit faceless interests to manipulate sections of the media into becoming instruments for the dissemination of falsehoods and coordinated attacks on their reputation.

We accordingly call on all media houses and persons responsible for the dissemination of these misleading publications to immediately cease and desist from further publication or circulation of the false narrative linking Adamus Resources Limited and Madam Angela List to allegations for which they have neither been cited nor accused.

Take notice that our Clients reserve all rights available to them under the law including the institution of legal proceedings against any person, media house, or entity found to have participated in the publication and circulation of these false and defamatory stories.

The public is advised to treat these publications with utmost disdain and to recognize them as a deliberate and coordinated attempt to damage reputations through falsehood and sensationalism.
